REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

Applicant has claimed uniquely distinct features in the instant invention which are not found in the prior art, either singularly or in combination.

According to the invention, a user is registered with the system by entry of information about the user at a carding station. Information on whether the user is authorized to access specific internet sites is stored in a server. A personal smart card for the user is generated at a carding station and a personal smart card including information that uniquely identifies the user and not including a microprocessor. The personal smart card is then read at an internet station and the user is identified based on the information stored on the personal smart card. The user's access to the specific internet sites is then controlled based on the information stored in the server regarding whether the user is authorized to access the specific internet sites after which the internet is displayed at the internet station.

In another embodiment, a personal smart card includes a photograph of the user of the system including a read only memory that stores information identifying the user to enable the system to control the user's internet access, wherein said personal smart card does not include a microprocessor.

In still another embodiment, there is a server which includes a registration module that registers a user with the system, a database that stores information regarding internet sites the user is authorized to access, an administration module that executes an active server page when an internet site is requested to be displayed and a deny module that grants or denies a request to
